The long and winding road: from systematic review of assessment and feedback literature to influencing practice

Dr Edd Pitt and Professor Kathleen M Quinlan, Centre for the Study of Higher Education, University of Kent

The main focus of the Assessment and Feedback Symposium was on various aspects of feedback and assessment in education. The program included a variety of sessions, including oral presentations, workshops, and lightning talks. The sessions covered topics such as peer evaluation, student voice, feedback literacy, and the use of multiple choice tests to enhance feedback. The symposium aimed to provide educators with practical strategies and tools to improve feedback practices in their institutions.